

The Archetypal Plant

One sees the organic relationship of the parts of the plant polarity and intensification (long curved arrow). The plant has its mid-point in the flower which is on the ego level. The pistil, fruit, and new seed are polar in form and function to the bud, leaf, and seed. For example, the leaf is polar to the fruit in that the leaf is soft on the inside and hard on the outside while the fruit is hard on the inside and soft on the outside.